This cycle has the highest percentages of winning trades over the years. Its tops and bottoms are marked by a red "X". Some of the charts also show a blue sine wave. Unfortunately, while adding the blue line I ran into a problem on some of the charts: it would not accept the blue line due to too many things on the charts. I need to get that figured out.

All dominate cycle turns over the last few days, and coming few days are published in the nightly newsletter.

Bullish/Bearish Cycle (Green/Red line): This is a combination of all the winning cycles. It is important to find assets that have been following this line over the last few weeks, and to expect it to continue doing so. All assets will go in and out of sync with this cycle. It is also important to keep an eye on the tops and bottoms of this cycle as the asset is like to reverse at these points.

Reversal 2 and Gann Indicators: These are strong reversal points. They are especially strong when they coincide with a turn in the Bullish/Bearish cycle. See the charts below

Over Extended Indicator: When these yellow circles start showing up, the current trend is over extended. Watch for the first candle when the yellow circle stops showing up. This is a sign the current trend is about to reverse or trend sideways for a few days then continue the current trend. All assets that are breaking out of an over extended position are also published in the nightly newsletter.
